I am doing a simple search system for my project and as I have read, it is very useful to use a "dynamic url" Example: I need to pass a variable in my url, but the problem is that I don't know how to "quote" the variable. As you know, when you pass a string variable into a url, you can use $1 and $2, $3 and so on. Is there any way to do it? A: Why not just use the QueryString() method? public ActionResult Search(string q) { // TODO: pass the value of q to your search logic here } Q: How do I get Radix sort to work? I have a bunch of 1,2,3,4,5,6 values I want to sort into order of significance. How do I write a radix sort function with x values of 1,2,3,4,5,6 and how do I make an array of the significant values? A: First, a radix sort is simply a particular way of implementing a radix sort. That's it. You should understand first what you'd like to accomplish by a radix sort. Then you can decide which data structures and techniques you will need to do so. For example, you may have n keys and wish to sort their corresponding values into a base 10 number system. You could do this by creating n buckets where the key is the bucket number (e.g. Bucket[0] => 1, Bucket[1] => 2.... ) and then extracting the bucket from the key, the value into the bucket, then updating the key and finally recalculating the buckets. For example, to sort
