in Salesforce? I am just wondering if there is a way to display another part of the Exception as a part of the exception?

Reason being is that Salesforce.com doesn't give you any detail in the exception and has a lot of problems with it. For example, if your production code hits a business class exception, there is no way for you to quickly identify which business class is the exception. I am just wondering if there is any solution for this.

Thanks -a A: You can get additional information with logging. You should log it for each and every system exception. The default logging level is INFO. You can also set the logging level for certain classes using the logging package. Here's some information about logging system exceptions.

In his first interview since being elected to the presidency in the November election, Richard M. Nixon told CBS' Walter Cronkite on Sunday that he hoped to "cooperate" with the new administration. The acceptance speech Nixon delivered at the Republican National Convention in San Francisco during which he cast the ballots of "one for me, and one against" for a variety of Republican candidates and was elected president has been described by some as "blunt," as Nixon and the nation accepted his defeat, some, including LATER COLUMNIST Mark Shields, state that Nixon will be able to effectively govern from office. And as Nixon sits in the White House, conservatives who thought they gained power in the GOP ticket are already sounding the charge of softness from the new president. But not so far, Nixon told Walter Cronkite. "We do not intend to turn the people's house into a partisan sanctuary for misfits," he told Cronkite in a Sunday interview, his first since his election on Nov. 7. But Nixon was careful to say that conservatives would see cooperation as a sign of weakness. "I do not intend to give that impression," he told Cronk 3e33713323
