Once you get the hang of it, the app is very easy to use. The interface is similar to the "Text reader" app, but "Ocr Text Recognizer" is actually faster at scanning and converting. That's because this app is not "smart". You have to actually choose and position the font the app should use. If you don't do this, then you are left with the options of "default" or the "selected" font. Even if you are familiar with the kind of font the app might use, choosing it will have the "Ocr Text Recognizer" attempt to decipher your handwriting. If the app works, then you will see a progress bar. As long as the text is readable, there is no problem with the font.
