Crop Crop lets you crop an image down to an exact shape, as shown in Figure 3-2, such as trimming a group of portraits together or cutting out a negative from a photo of a person. Figure 3-2: Crop lets you crop the image to an exact shape. Crop works by selecting the area to crop and then clicking the Crop Image button. Click and drag to the right or left to crop out parts of the image to remove them. Click the Crop button to save your crop and close the menu. You can crop an image horizontally or vertically. You can even crop a layer, which makes it easier to resize without affecting the rest of

It describes how art can change the world and enrich lives, but it doesn't exactly convince you to put down your brushes, dump the canvas, and run away to join a monastery. Don't worry, trust me, art does change the world, but only in the most minute, tangible ways. I also hear it from people who feel as though they "make a difference" by raising the money to stop a war or by being part of the solution to environmental problems. But if I was feeling cynical, I'd think it was the same kind of overblown rhetoric you hear from peaceniks. Well, in some cases it is that, but I also think this is true: the impact of art is real. If there's one consistent response that art has received over the years, I'm prepared to call it the monotheist hypothesis. It's long been the consensus among many that art is a manifestation of divine energy and power, and as such, the impact of art is profound, all-encompassing, and miraculous. Art is

What's New In Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.3)?

Q: Synchronize Zooming and Scrolling with CSS and JS I have a bunch of elements that are contained within a div. When I zoom into an element, I want it to scroll into place. I've got the JavaScript code to zoom in and out in place and I've got the left margin of the div to change as needed. I also have a smooth scrolling code that moves the elements to the top. I'm not sure how to combine the two. I'm looking for a way to do the following: Center the zoomed div in the viewport When you zoom in and out, the div scrolls to stay visible in the viewport (left margin does not change) It should look something like the following: In this example, I've zoomed in from the top and it's centered in the viewport, but it's not scrolling with the zoom. Also, I know there are scripts out there like jQuery's zoom or smoothscroll that do what I'm looking to do, but I'm working on a team that doesn't use a library (just CSS). Here is what I have so far: #scrolling { height: 100%; display: table; height: 100%; } .row { display: table-row; } .cell { display: table-cell; text-align: center; } .zoom { /* I want to keep this margin the same on all devices */ margin: 0 0; } Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit.
