Q: After upgrading to angular 7, some directive attributes aren't recognized by other JS libraries Yes after upgrading to angular 7, new attributes are not recognized by angular directive and so it's not considered by other components or libraries an example will be `app.directive('kbnTheatreBox', function($rootScope){ return{ restrict : "EA", replace: true, templateUrl : "partials/myTemplate", scope: { details : "=" }, controller :function(){ } } });` in new angular 7, if i add an attribute for it like `[kbnTheatreBox][attributes]="hero"` it won't work when using in other js libraries. if i use it in this way, it will work. but, it will not work If I remove the square brackets entirely, the attribute won't be interpreted. how can i configure the angular 7 to interpret the `[kbnTheatreBox][attributes]` attribute
