I have tried using all four settings of connection, and I'm having no luck. Before I get ready to pull my hair out (I've already done so, lol) I'm looking for a couple of pointers. Are you trying to connect with a service that requires a password? If so, are you providing this information in the username? If you're trying to connect to a service without requiring a password, and you're getting an error, it's most likely because you're not providing a valid service name and password. Are you sure you're providing the correct service name and username and password? Re-create your connections, making sure to use the correct settings. Can you provide any extra information, such as device model, d0c515b9f4
