"What the hell is this?" - The rest of the guys can only listen in horror as the thing starts to dig in the dirt, leaving the ever-present bloodstains as it goes. It's almost as if it's trying to bury something. The others realize that they're not going to get an explanation, and the relief is palpable. Not until much later, when they're inside a dilapidated safehouse, is anyone courageous enough to go and find out just what exactly this thing is. "What the hell is this?!" The whole rest of the group bickers about who went to check, and who should have done it. But when they find out it was Joe, they get angry at him. They're all convinced it's best to just forget about it. It would be best if the group just left it alone. But then, when Joe's started crying, they realize that maybe it's time to talk to him. The group starts to dutifully follow Joe back to the place. Only, as they arrive, the only thing waiting for them is their weapons and torches. And as soon as they light up, they get attacked by a hellstorm of screaming angry shadows. And then, as they're attacked, and every attempt to destroy the shadows fails, the group realizes what's happened. They set up a flaming barrier to try and contain it, but it keeps breaking through. Terrified, the group is completely helpless to stop it as it rips their bodies apart. And as all the other shadows continue to descend, the group realizes that the only way to stop this thing is for all of them to sacrifice themselves. And so they start to do that. At first, they see it through numbers. Together, they are stronger than the thing is, they're just not willing to sacrifice themselves. After all, no one wants to die. And then, after it has destroyed every last one of them, all that's left are Joe, the others, and the thing. And Joe is crying, and the others won't even look at him. They're all too afraid to go near him 595f342e71
