Conference of Commonwealth Magistrates The Conference of Commonwealth Magistrates is a body of magistrates which comes together annually in the United Kingdom to review the work of magistrates and collate information for the Director of Public Prosecutions. The Conference is chaired by a President elected from among the senior magistrate members of the body. The Conference decides how the MAG (Magistrates' Association) shall be run. It also: Makes a recommendation to the Secretary of State for Justice as to the number of MAG officers required for each of the 1,438 Divisions. Supervises MAG elections and the preparation of charters. Annually reviews the organisation of the National List of Jurors. Annually reviews the organisation of the National List of Probation Officers. Annually reviews the organisation of the National List of Crown Prosecutors. The Conference makes recommendations to the MPS (Ministry of Justice) as to how many magistrates should be appointed, an estimate of the probable growth of the number of magistrates in the years ahead, the criteria to be adopted for the appointment of magistrates, and the details of the training and expenses of all members of the Ministry of Justice. Publication The Report of the Conference is published annually. Patients will be randomized to receive either a total parenteral nutrition (TPN) low salt formulation or TPN with the normal sodium content. The workup and initial management of these patients will be the same for both groups. The short-term goals for patients assigned to the TPN low salt group are to reduce TPN salt and improve BP control. Those assigned to the TPN with normal sodium will be provided with TPN that has been modified to contain The number of

The ultimate goal of the research effort is to develop high quality, reproducible and reliable chemical and biological methods for the detection of disseminated micro-organisms within the human body. The development of the new technology is based upon the continuing exploration of the properties of the recently developed chemiluminescence immunoassay. Relevant clinical applications include the early and specific diagnosis of disseminated infections associated with bacterial and viral systemic diseases including the diagnosis of osteomyelitis, endocarditis, meningitis, and infections of the urinary tract, as well as inflammatory diseases of the gastrointestinal tract. The specific methodology will be applied in parallel with cytochemical and immunologic investigations for the diagnosis of diseases of the bone and cardiovascular system. Other applications include the identification of the presence of an infection in critically ill patients and the assessment of the efficacy of antibiotic therapy. Punter Mortimer, a surprise starter on the first day of the U.S. Open, left the championship tournament Thursday, telling ESPN.com that he planned to quit the game. Asked for his reaction, Minnesota Vikings punter Chris Kluwe would only say, "I wish him the best." Kluwe, a popular member of the NFL community in the Twin Cities and a frequent presenter at Vikings home games, was slapped with a team fine this week by the NFL Players Association after speaking on the unpopular subject of homophobia in the NFL during an interview on ESPN's Outside the Lines. The fine was for $21,000, which would be donated to the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation. Kluwe, whose manager is openly gay, has a lifetime contract as a punter with the Vikings, worth an estimated $1.4 million. The Vikings said Kluwe has been fined for his comments, but declined further comment because the matter is ongoing. "Punter Mortimer is too young to have a 9-year-old son. His dad kicked him out, and now he just wants to punish his son," Kluwe said in a written statement after the punter quit the U.S. Open. "That seems pretty twisted to me." Kluwe was introduced at the U.S.
