What's new in Elden Ring:

Powered by NinjaMight, NinjaPol and hosted by Camelot UnchainedDevs create a world in which an unknown civilization reached for the stars and built a new solar system, leaving fire rings throughout the system to show they were once here, and to make farming, hunting and other day-to-day activities possible. Take control of a new ranger equipped with the tools to survive, seek out answers, and become a hero in this new game type! The server is running in a flexible Big Cliff Canyon biomes with high canyon walls and other settings. July 17, 2017 Build 7 - big Jump In Progress

THERE ARE NOW MORE THAN A DOZEN GIGANTIC LEVELS OVER 200 TINY ENTRANCES! >Simply run over them with your tank to dispatch them. >The level is based upon a huge orchard with alps around it. >The level is big in terms of space and lots of ore lumps, textured rock, boulders, and plants.

Once we have the metal processing required we have started to level based on that. In this build we are using the first elven settlement that will likely go live. The next settlement will likely be centered in the nexus of two mountain ranges. Here is where the metal processing will be located, as that is where many elven settlements are located.

The plan is to have the first elven settlement's metal workbenches to be the start of a series of ten workbenches, each "generation" being laid out close to the outposts that were once built. The workbenches will take a little while to populate, we are hoping to get three generations up and running to get the ball rolling but at a minimum we will have three generations.

For the time being all outposts are farms and a small town, with temporary chieftainship buildings populating until the full-scale outpost builds are completed. The outposts are on the same resource grids as each other. A newer outpost tends to have more uncollected resources on the first generation.

The first outpost is located on the town resource grid, where a central mining cavern is in the past. This outpost has one 3D print model that is not finished, the rest have been converted to 3D print models.
