To know the relationship between the nursing care level and nursing quality of patients. Validated instrument was used to measure nursing care level (NCS) and nursing practice quality (NQPS) with the factor analysis and structural equation model to calculate the relationship between them. 531 patients in the Department of Gastroenterology in Peking Union Medical College Hospital from May to August 2008 were selected with patient family, inpatients and outpatients. NCS and NQPS had a linear relationship ($r=0.818$, $P_{\text{French Avignon Revolt}}$)

The French Avignon Revolt (Révolte de l'Avignonnaise, Révolte des Bons Hommes, or Revolt of the Good Men) or the French Avignon uprising (French: Révolte de l'Avignonnaise) was the armed uprising of a group of disgruntled citizens of Avignon on the night of 12 April 1348, against a French royal order for the arrest of the city's archbishop, Pierre Roger. The revolt is considered an act of popular resistance against an arbitrary power. It marked the first use of the term Bons Hommes (Good Men) to describe those who fought against the French king in the Hundred Years' War. The revolt was quelled four days later by the French king's troops. Background The French crown claimed the Kingdom of Naples, the Kingdom of Sicily,
