What's new:

Club Naughty is the third studio album by the Swedish dance band Clubfeet. The album was originally released on the 7 September 1997, with its title track as the lead single. The album produced five minor hit singles and three minor misses. History Clubfeet decided to become more independent for the third album. At this point, Olof Lagerbäck had the main riff on "Go Naughty". After he finished his studies at college, the band started playing the song in a barn. Before they were ready to work on the album, Olof Lagerbäck went on a motorcycle trip with bassist Anders Håkansson in Australia. He had wanted to go there long before. They met a Swedish guy who worked in a music store with a lot of CDs. He said it was a lively environment and he liked dancing. They took the CDs home where they listened to a lot of electronica. They decided to try some of them on their new song "Go Naughty". The band was not pleased with their results. They decided to restart from scratch. They wrote about two different meanings of the words "naughty". "Go Naughty" is the name of the song but it also means to do something you normally don't do for someone you love. "Dare to be Naughty" is written by Jackie Mirrors in English and "Kärlekens ansikte", which means "The Face of Love" is written by Peter Leandersson. When Johan Genock and Joachim Sundström had finished recording their parts at Lundkvarn, they went to see Clubfeet's drummer. Before they met with the band he wanted to show them his new 2003 Nissan X-Trail. Before the band went to Sossavik Studios in Sossavik, local metal band Front Line Assembly were playing at the venue. The band stood on the stage not giving a fuck about them. They wished that they would have stripped down their parts and played their songs "when the feet need to dance to the floor. The band played about 10 songs in the studio but the audience was not that amused. Before the album was released, they played at the Laboratoriet in which the Chemical Brothers played about five days later. They played "Go Naughty" at Ericsson Globe in Stockholm and the show was a success. They played all the songs. After the show they were selected as the best
