The telenovela features the main cast from the previous hit series Olya, which has been dubbed into Ukrainian as "Olya: Dva sviny" (Olya: Two Sides). The series ran for 26 episodes. Series description A new telenovela is born after the successful sequel series "Olya, Dva Sviny". Due to numerous requests and the popularity of Olya, the channel decided to continue the series with another ending to the series. Story The story follows the relationship of two friends, a girl with a rich family background and a talented university student, who have the same room in her college. Both get closer and during this process both fall in love with the same man, but it's only a big misunderstanding and misunderstanding does not need to hurt others, does not need to be a sin. When one of them does not recognize the other, he has to decide what will they do in this situation. Cast Main Svetlana Khodchenok as Teofil Izyumova - university student Dmytro Golubets as Yuriy Kokorin - restaurant owner Eugene Maksymov as Taras Krymchenko - businessman Alexandra Morfod - Olya's friend and love interest Olga Kovalenko as Olya - university student and Pal Ihor Spivak as Valeriy Serdyuk - Olya's best friend Natalya Slepik as Olga - Olya's mother Recurring Alexander Baklushin as Viktor Anna Avliuk as Veronika (Olya's aunt) Nina Petrova as Valya Kokorina (Yuriy's mother) Eduard Gusev as Borys Veronika Milin as Asta International broadcast References Category:2014 telenovelas Category:Ukrainian television

4 Steps to Improve Ecommerce Conversions on Your Digital Marketing Campaigns Conversion rate optimization is a MUST to increase your ecommerce conversion rates. To make it even better, there's a handy tool that you can use called Conversion Rate Optimization Tool or CRO Tool. Trust me, it's worth trying it out because, when done well, it will add up to a 57% higher converting rate. Another factor why this is important is, if you had one of the highest converting products, say $1,000+ when someone clicks on them, your ROI will increase dramatically! 2. Take Advantage of Good User Optimization You might have a great product, but if the user's experience is not a good one, they might not buy from you. For example, one of my clients has a VR product which he's been putting a lot of work for months to make it best in the market. In fact, he's going to go 30k next month, but he had a hard time to get them to trust him because the user experience wasn't good enough. So he had to rebuild the campaign and resume it all over and hire a few more designers to make it better. Next to ensure your product is user-friendly and easy to use, take care of the UX during its early stages. It allows you to have the best looking, feeling and well-designed product, instead of settling with the "done" look of most ecommerce websites. 3. Remember that it's NOT easy to sell ecommerce items. There's so much competition out there, if you have a super-high converting product, it won't be easy to be able to outrun your competitors with ease. So when launching your product, remember that it's not as easy as just launching. You have to endure a long learning curve until the end, and then spend

For too many aspiring candidates this is the single most important factor. They have to know what it takes to win, and where the money comes from. It's a view I've written about before in relation to Bernie Sanders. He's not a traditional Democrat, and has no shame in admitting to being the socialist he is. And I get that he's tough. But he's also smart, thoughtful, and knows his own issues. And this week he dove into the Bernie Underground with an articulation of his strategy to beat the odds. Now you may not agree with his tactics and focus on the economy, but you can't deny that it's a winning message. You have to look at some of the other liberals in the field like Chris Dodd or Hillary Clinton. They've tried to do this too, but they haven't put the time and effort into getting their message out there. And you have to ask the simple question: Who is going to win the Democratic primary? It's Bernie today, and it will be Hillary in November. But it's not going to be a battle for the middle, or a battle between Clinton and Obama, but that of the movement itself. The Sanders campaign is forcing the discourse to a new discussion, and reminding Democrats that they are not a small minority looking to the Republicans for the future. So they have to build a campaign that has broad appeal, and does not rest on the c9d1549cdd

(Official France Cover) Exatron Quest L'Epee de sang (Official France Cover) is the fifth studio album (fifth overall, with the first being Root of Entropy on 1994) by the Swiss industrial metal band KMFDM and was released on May 27, 1996 through Canadian record label Wax Trax! Records. A condensed version of the album was released by Wax Trax! in April 1996 and was the last KMFDM album released with Wax Trax! The album received a mixed reception by critics, holding a rating of 51 at musicOMH.com. Many songs from the album were featured as part of KMFDM's "1999 Show" tour. The single L'Epee de Sang peaked at No. 8 on Billboards Mainstream Rock Tracks. Background Asked about why he created a black and white album cover, dancer and on-stage performer Sascha Konietzko replied: "Black & white was the answer to the question 'why this?' So, why not? If I'd want to do this wholesale, I'd do all my albums in black and white." Quest L'Epee de Sang was KMFDM's first major music change where the music became more melodic and the lyrical content changed to help with the new direction. The original title in English and French was Ten Thousand Kill and the album cover was designed by Tomas Sonnenfeldt. The title was chosen by drummer En Esch. The English title was not changed to "Wish Me Away" as was reported in KIK Magazine. Production Quest L'Epee de Sang was recorded entirely in Poole, England by Andy Gangloff. This was the first KMFDM album after being split from Canadian producer Paul O'Neill. O'Neill said about the process of recording the album: "Quest L'Epee de Sang had been a very long time in the works and I was intrigued to know that Sascha was interested in trying to get it done outside of the U.S., so I made it my ambition to make it happen. I put together a team - Rick Pearson drumming, Steve Julian on bass, and Jock Sposato on guitar. There were some other interesting people involved too, including Mike Zirnhelt on keyboard, Nick D'
