Hi everyone, Welcome to MikuMikuDance! We've been quiet here, so forgive us for being so late! We've been busy writing the core mechanics for this game, and we're finally ready to release! MikuMikuDance is a game that mixes together dancing with role playing, and allows for easy and fun interactions with the world's greatest virtual idol, Miku! We started development about a year ago with a group of six people, and thanks to the help of many others, we've managed to make an amazing game in a relatively short time! We hope that you'll enjoy it as much as we enjoyed making it! Brought to you by Project MUSE, the people behind Project DIVA, and the people that brought us PONIES! Features: ~Play as a virtual idol, and travel to other worlds ~Find your favorite characters, and become friends! ~Gain plenty of experience! ~Complete various quests, learn new dances, and collect special items! ~Fight monsters and obtain special items! ~Watch the story unfold as the game progresses Gameplay: ~You play a character, and this character has a type. ~Each character has their own strengths, weaknesses, and special skills! ~In-game events will require you to use these special skills! ~When you visit new dungeons, you'll be able to test them out! ~All dungeons will be procedurally generated, and the risks of battles will vary depending on the dungeon itself. ~Many of these dungeons will require you to improve your characters! ~Dance with Miku during certain points of gameplay! ~There will be over 60 different songs for you to learn! ~Because the game is music-based, you'll also be able to talk to the characters! ~Miku herself will appear, and

What's new:

7 Clarents look like they come from the late 60s/early 70s. The Blitzkriegs and SS Namaly are kinda standard army lists (1, 2&3 Clarents) but iv'e literally seen double-digit round duels with the SS Rayons Beaux. The Clarent Commandos are like the Clarent Army list of legend, and they're not even uncommon but they are usually seen at 3 characters. Thanks for covering this list. I am quite interested in this concept that only 2 Clarents can be used with the SS Namaly to quote you "due to the 50pt maximum per army." This would mean that we are faced with a conundrum of either playing first, potentially 2/3 of our army on the table or pushing further in time (to pull them back out). If we push, we are likely pressed to watch the whole army come in. While if we play first, and fail to retreat or recall out of turn we are empty handed. I know it's a tricky balance but I am interested in finding your perspective or those with experience of this concept. Also, and not related to the topic but I want to say, "Nachbar, u'd better not droaßen." It's the Führerprinzsse's first command...which is as close to surrender as a German can get. Toura actually is a Trap list - These will be beaten by "normal" Clarents due to the amount of machinery required. Additionally they don't require their Thunderfires, but that makes them VERY prone to the Nausicaa. The Clarent Commandos and Commandos are the most effective and flexible units in the game because of their high movement rates and combat stats. Even if you don't have enough points to plop a SS Namaly or BS3wac, the Clarent will usually be enough to commit resources as fast as possible. Provided the right leadership, the artillery lasts most of the game, and the Clarents will shoot up terrain like no one's business. The base Clarents are a strong start, but I don't play for consistency so nothing strong comes out of that base. The newly introduced Commandos however are a much better deal. For 2 commandos, you can plop anywhere between 5 and 10 frontline units. If you're aggressive, that means some SS Ninjas or Das Zweerchen or
