Working with the selection tools Photoshop also comes with several selection tools, each of which is best suited for a specific purpose. The most common selection tools include the following:

- Quick Selection: This tool is your first tool of choice when you're selecting an object.
- Lasso: It's sometimes called the magic wand tool because you can draw with it just as you would with a wand.
- Polygonal Lasso: It enables you to draw with a path, but it works much like the Quick Selection tool.
- Luminance: This tool enables you to select an area of an image based on its brightness.
- Spot Healing: This tool allows you to remove color from an area of an image.
- Elliptical Marquee: With this tool, you can select a specific part of an image — a window, for example — and drag it to a different location.

In addition to the tools that work on layer edges, there are many other selection tools that enable you to perform even more complicated operations on your images. The selection tools are listed in Table 1-1.

The government has apparently ruled out tax cuts, but Tony Abbott is planning a new tax on the big end of town as well as delivering what he called 'punishing' cuts for younger Australians. It's a growing and divisive row, with the Opposition attacking the Government for not even consulting the public ahead of the $14 billion plan to force private health insurance companies to offer cover to all Australian residents. But shadow treasurer Chris Bowen says Australia should expect more of this sort of thing from this government. "There's no doubt this government governs from the centre with a view to the centre. And it will use the political centre ground as its battleground," Mr Bowen told Sky News. He says those cuts would be included in the 2013 federal Budget, an unpopular idea with Mr Abbott. "He will in fact be talking about a very punitive tax cut for older Australians in the 2013 Budget," he said. The government has argued that the plan will encourage Australians to join health funds, but the Opposition says it will instead push them away. "It will cost us billions in the longer term. If you can't afford a health fund now, you're not going to join one next year," Mr Bowen said. Another part of the plan will involve a $7 billion cut in government services, such as Medicare, which Mr Abbott will be forced to make because of a deal struck with crossbenchers in the Senate. He has not ruled out making similar cuts in education. "Why is it that we should be singled out and asked to take more pain?" Mr Bowen asked. "This is your government that has decided we should all take more pain." The government is continuing to argue that the cuts will only affect the size of the Government's budget deficit, not its trajectory. "The claim that it is a slippery slide to the doldrums, people out of work, billion dollar deficits, and only when you reach the doldrums will they start cutting spending, is a very dangerous claim," Mr Abbott said. "I have been very clear on this. The Budget is not the cause of the problem of the government. The Budget is not going to save Australia from going down the drain." Neither side of politics is happy with the Budget deal, but the government says the Budget agreement was the only way forward to avoid legislative chaos.

For nearly eight decades, the U.S. military has used the 501st Corps of Cadets as part of the U.S. Army Cadet Command's Honor Guard. Now, the Corps of Cadets will use the U.S. Army Cadet Command's own Honor Guard to perform during military funerals. The Corps of Cadets Honor Guard started performing this military tradition over a year ago. "The U.S. Army Cadet Command is honored to serve as the Honor Guard of the United States Army at all military funerals," said Maj. Gen. Douglas J. Keith, U.S. Army Cadet Command commanding general. The Corps of Cadets will continue to perform this important military tradition through 2020. × Fear of missing out? "This is our honor, our privilege," said Cadet Staff Sgt. John M. Hogan. "We got to put on our dress uniform to honor our heroes. The government benefits from it, we benefit from it. It's just our duty to honor our nation's servicemen and women." On Thursday, around 400 Cadets gathered at the Cadet Honor Guard Activities building, located at Joint Base Myer-Henderson Hall, to hear a speech from Maj. Gen. Keith. The general served as a cadet in the Corps of Cadets and graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1984. "This institution is at the top of the honor guard," said Maj. Gen. Keith. "We're honored to take part in the military funeral." The non-profit organization, Chapter 102, of the Association of Former Cadets also participates in the military funerals. Among those attending the event were Cadets who graduated from U.S. Military Academy, the academy's Honor Guard and Honor Guard company. Tuesday marked the last day of Cadet Summer Training. "It's an honor for any of us," said Cadet Maj. Bradley M. Gore. "It's different for every person. I'm different because I grew up in a
