Why is it that the latter takes less time?

A: Because the compiler can inline out the array allocation/storage to the equivalent of a stack variable. If it didn't do this, you could be allocating thousands of array, just to return them. A:

The JIT unboxes your 2-dimensional arrays on the fly if the array is small. It creates a stack object for the inner array, and then concatenates them. It does this only if needed; if the array is large enough, it will just inline it. Writing a Great Query Letter A query is a letter. Your query should be one of the most important aspects of your query letter. It is the first impression you make on the agent/editor as to your writing style and how much it would be worth investing in reading your full manuscript. For many, the query letter is the first thing they read, maybe the only thing they read before they ask themselves "do I really want to

News Chrysler workers go to Detroit for talks with Ford Workers at Chrysler's Sterling Heights assembly plant in suburban Detroit began picketing outside the plant's gates Monday, saying they want to be part of the company's ongoing dialogue with the union representing factory workers. About 300 of the UAW's newest members at the factory walked off the job Monday after a weekend of bargaining that failed to reach a new contract. Local bargaining sessions began last week, and the union made what it said were good faith offers. "Our people were saying that we would like to see an agreement 0cc13bf012

For those who follow Fort-de-France, St-Malo, or the American resort of Nova Scotia, there's always one team to watch in the World Curling Championships: Team Canada. This year's title is theirs to defend. On the other hand, this season marks the 15th anniversary of a championship that few thought likely just a few years ago. The creation of the World Curling Tour in 1995, as an alternative to the old Canadian curling tour, was surely inspired by Canadian Paul Drinkhall's 1990 victory in America's curling battle. It included two events in New York and one in California and the United States needed a tour of its own. There were some notable and memorable events, including the time that a Canadian curler pulled the ice plug out from under a US team as they were trying to sweep. The old Canadian tour responded by creating the USCA circuit in 1995. From 1995 to 2007 the World Cur
