1. Unrar and run ELDEN RING 2. Play and enjoy!EndTalk about a post on a Friday that's long overdue. The repub (to borrow the terminology of the 1994 film, Forrest Gump) has one less human on the face of the planet (or in this case, on the Earth-mars) and is one step closer to achieving ultimate power. A 21st century Gattaca moment? A remake of WALL•E? Or something completely different? My mind is spinning. Well, not really. sure if that's a weakness or if it's a strength. I'm also not sure what the article is hinting at when it says: "It has become apparent from the way in which many countries have been preparing for and responding to the COVID-19 crisis that while there has been a willingness to identify and control who has access to data and who can see it, that willingness is limited in its scope and very much constrained by what our society has come to accept as acceptable." I ask you to do something that is scary and that forces you to fully step outside of your comfort zone. Why? It is an immensely valuable tool that can be used to push you to both grow your craft and learn about yourself. Every day, I try to do something different. I try to do something that pushes me to the edge of my comfort zone, and helps me continue to grow as a programmer. And this year, what I'm doing has to do with programming. Today, I'm sharing the reason why I've decided to try to get up and do something I didn't do yesterday. I'm learning to be more patient. I
