Alchemelee is about making potions, but it's also about creating a game that you can play however you want. Each game of Alchemelee has two components: the level up and the potion. Up to four players take turns expanding their own gardens, plant, harvest, and brew ingredients. The goal of the game is simply to be the first player to complete all three of your potions. If you have created three potions in a row, you go on to the next level up, which lets you brew more potions

(and more powerful potions, at that!) If you were the first to complete the three potions that you needed to win in the game, you get to take the pot (complete with a player counter showing how many players played the game). The potion takes its inspiration from the "Beer Pong" game style. A feature in the game allows you to use your brews for the next round, which lets you take a shot at your neighbor's brews. You can also use your brews to directly attack other players' plots, sending them flying to the ground. If you are the attacker, you can also choose to let them heal their potion, or you can use a potion to knock them off of their pedestal. The game ends when someone passes all three of their brews, or when an entire row of players who were simultaneously active has taken all of their potions. Characters Potions The three potions you will need to make in Alchemelee are: Cure: heal two of your player's potions in one turn. Each potion can only be healed once per game, even if you keep healing the potion. Set bomb: crash down a neighbor's potion. It takes ten seconds to set a bomb, so you can choose to activate it or not. Strong potion: are you strong enough to use a potion on yourself? You have to be able to set up a potion on your plot. Just think "Drink Me!", or any other pun you can think of. Brews There are a number of different brews you can make in Alchemelee: Inflate bomb: a commonly used bomb that can be used to affect the environment. Can be used to knock down your opponent's pot, to knock another player down, or even to knock a player's own plot off of "Skill Master VR -- Learn Meditation" is an interactive VR game. This game includes the separate accounts (Realtime tracking, breaths, practice). Two new features "Personal Best" and "Challenge" have been added and need to be created by the players. The game includes "Breakthrough mode" in which a player trains a skill (breathing, meditation, mindfulness). With the progress of the skills the player will have the opportunity to "choose" a new challenge. He will choose a new meditation object or an environment for meditation. Maybe he will get to "see" how long a breath is, where he was and what he was doing before. "Personal Best" will be the accumulated time during the practice of a skill. When the player achieves a personal best time or accumulates a new personal best for a skill his medal will be added to the "cup" and in it is the number of games played with that medal. The "cup" is not drawn from the "draw of luck". The games are "played" for the user with points. By playing a game he will be able to win more medals and his medals will be accumulated in the "cup". Every game he will win 3 medals which are added to his medal cup and at the end of the month his medal cup is filled with the total number of medals. The "cup" is designed as a significant tool to motivate the user. He is free to move the medals for their own use. For instance, he can wear a shirt with "medal" or put a medal on a different object. What are the different meditations? Play the game to find out more. Last day before "Challenge" is added to the game: at the beginning of the game a free-to-play app will start. "It's time to play, see what's next!". "Skill Master VR -- Learn Meditation" was created using Unreal Engine 4 in partnership with Oculus Rift S and HTC Vive Pro. The game is created using the "Unity game engine." The game data is saved in the form of files with the extension ".package" which contains.json files for each screen. "Skill Master VR -- Learn Meditation" has been successfully tested on the Samsung Galaxy S10+ and the Samsung Galaxy S10 (2017) smartphones (not on the Samsung

Note 8). There will be 4 versions of the game. Samsung Galaxy S9+ and Samsung Galaxy Note 9 smartphones and the Samsung S10 / S10+ smartphones

Island Hopping: The Transatlantic Crossing 31 December, 1924 ''The ocean is waitin' for me, sisters. The ocean is waitin' for me.... Oh, I'm so cold. I feel so good. There's a boat in the ocean, a boat in the ocean. I'm alone in the ocean, sisters, I'm alone in the ocean.'' ~ Irving Berlin The barge looked ancient, dingy and ancient. The wooden pilings stretched back into the gloom beyond the bridge, the portholes dark, empty hollows covered by frosted glass. The mist from the north Atlantic Ocean had rolled over them in the early morning of New Year's Day. It was cold, -18° Celsius, and the vessel was freezing, which was par for the course of this particular ocean voyage. From their vantage point on the Noramput Ocean, Harry and Betty were taking in the scene before them. The mist was clearing and the sun was rising over the roaring Atlantic, still maddeningly white and with the sheen of a glacier. An astral fog of mist hung over the barge, but over the hills and mountains that ringed the shoreline the clouds separated and parted, shedding light on the white surf and the crests of foam, while at the same time casting a shadowed enclosure of umbra around the barge's moorings. "... Are you ready?" Harry called up to Betty, his voice barely a whisper carrying above the gentle lapping of the surf against the pales. "I am," she called back, "I'm ready to sail away from all of this." 'You have me,' Harry thought, 'I have no where else to go. ' Beyond the portholes, Betty saw Isabella Guevara, in her red shawl and fur cloggs stick her feet in the air and begin to stamp her booties against her palms. The clippety-clop sound of her rubber cloggs against her palms was a comforting sound in the stillness. Isabella had spent the night in a bunk beneath an old life boat. Small chance of Zandra and Louise making it out the perimeters of the lashings on the barge. Inside the main cabin Zandra and Louise were warming themselves with the big brass stove. The girls shared a cabin and Zandra was cognizant of its cramped space

This was shortly after the creation of the Earth, before the sun and moon were formed. This first starting point was populated by a clan of Nouns that had migrated from the Darkness. Collecting and hunting their food and drinking water, this clan settled in the northern part of the planet. Ever so slowly they evolved from their hunt for Earth's last remaining food into a society of poets, scientists, and artists. This... Its a file - dubbed 'att-x.exe' and it can be found in the default directory of that game - when you start it up for the first time.

It's basically a frontend for the PatchMgr.exe - that is if you don't have the original game or it is not on your system yet.

Not recommended if you haven't even played the game or you're not even certain you own it as it might change some settings or data of your original game to make better.

Therefore

reccomended its a one time job and you're done with it.
