President Trump's 2020 re-election campaign will hold rallies across the country next month and on Wednesday, campaign manager Brad Parscale said he wants to catch a wave and flood the president's Twitter feed with news about himself. "We are a bunch of humble, true blue dreamers with strong arms and big hearts who care about the American people and their families," Parscale wrote in an email to NBC News. "We must stop the left and their media from trying to spin the numbers to make us look bad and steal our supporters. This is our mission and we will accomplish this in every way we can." The president's 2020 campaign will hold rallies throughout September with many of them in the final months before the midterms. "We have no choice but to be loud and proud of ourselves because this is who we are and it's our future," the campaign manager added. The campaign has been criticized for a lack of presence on social media and a large amount of ads airing on Fox News has been accused of attacking Democrats and being filled with misinformation and out of context. An internal campaign poll showed that the president only has a 7 percent favorability rating with voters. "The main message of our ad is that we are working for the people who

I have a datatable with 50 rows and 2 columns. I want the user to be able to type anything in one of the columns and I want the data to be displayed into this cell. I was thinking of having this return a String and format it to one cell. Maybe that is not a good way to do this. This is my code so far.

public static void main(String[] args) { Student[] S1 = new Student[50]; Formatter sf = new Formatter(); sf.format(S1); } public static void main(String[] args) { int t = 0; student[] S1 = new student[50]; S1[t] = new student(); S1[t].setDOB(""); S1[t].setFN("john doe"); S1[t].setLN("rondell"); S1[t].setSsn("2324"); ++t; S1[t] = new student(); S1[t].setDOB(""); S1[t].setFN("jack brown"); lcdb36666d

The statement, made by Rahul Gandhi in Uttar Pradesh, attracted attention when he said: "The prices of onions and potatoes have gone up by seven and eight times, respectively. The government should cut the prices of onion and potato by half." Onion prices in Delhi went up to Rs 30 for 700 grams from Rs 17.50 for the same quantity in October 2014. Potato prices increased to Rs 92 from Rs 55 in October last year. But the Congress party appeared to ignore the statement and instead played the victim. It said that Rahul Gandhi had only taken the price hikes into consideration and not the nationwide shortage of vegetables. Congress leader Abhishek Manu Singhvi said that Rahul Gandhi's statement about cutting onion and potato prices was met with "anger" on the part of farmers and consumers. "Farmers and consumers are more sensitive to these issues, which is why Rahul Gandhi focussed attention on the prices by placing certain restrictions on the purchase and distribution," he said. "If the Congress party has learnt from the experience and the mistakes it made in 2014, then it can stay in power for a longer period than the ruling BJP. And that is why they chose to single out the prices of vegetables and not the implementation of the Food Security Act," he added. Singhvi was quoted in the Hindu newspaper saying: "The BJP leaders and the RSS have been speaking against the real problems that face farmers. They are saying that the prices of food have gone up in recent months. But they have not mentioned that the prices of onions and potatoes have increased by almost 40 per cent," he claimed. The Congress leader also said that the party was keeping these issues in mind while working on the new Food Security Act. "We have decided to raise

Two patients with chronic angina pectoris were treated in an attempt to reduce their anginal symptoms. Despite extensive baseline workup, both patients had normal coronary artery anatomy, and the only abnormality was elevated levels of plasma beta-lipoprotein (chylomicrons and very low density lipoprotein). Perhexiline, a long-acting antianginal agent, was given by intravenous infusion in the first patient. Four hours after the initiation of therapy, the patient developed abdominal pain and vomiting. Laparotomy performed four hours after the onset of her symptoms revealed extensive gastric perforation. The second patient developed rhabdomyolysis.The primary objective of this proposal is to provide coverage of the MCRAA meetings. The major objective of the MCRAA is to provide summary reports of the meetings to the membership as well as to communicate scientific and educational information to the general public. MCRAA intends to focus primarily on opportunities that arise from the ongoing collaboration between the scientific community and the public on the one hand, and the biomedical ethics community on the other. A secondary objective is to provide an opportunity for the general public and laypersons to have an informal understanding of the basic concepts and issues encountered in both the science of genetics and the bioethics of genetics. To achieve these objectives, MCRAA will conduct two types of meetings: one of these is the formal conference portion of MCRAA, and the other is an educational lecture series. MCRAA has adopted a goal of facilitating the participation of those who are at present less represented in the MCRAA. This is achieved by providing comprehensive coverage of the meetings, various activities to encourage attendance of those not present at the meetings, and convening a session on "Upcoming Issues" at the Midwestern Regional Conference. The Midwestern Regional Conference will include the 10 regional chapters, faculty members and students, and will consist of the presentation of a summary of the MCRAA meetings with the balance of the time devoted to the "Upcoming Issues" session.Q: OSM: Image-API and HTTP-Requests for Bounding Box of a POI
