Especially for folders. Is there an alternative way to move files that are stored in desktop icons to the trash? A: You can create a service (system file) that will run on boot. mkdir /Applications/ sudo defaults write com.apple.desktoputils \TrashApplication::ServicePath /Applications/ This will create a /Applications/com.apple.trash.plist. sudo defaults write com.apple.desktoputils \TrashApplication::Icon 'trash:cancel' Save and then reboot. There will be no program icon to click, the behavior will be similar to emptying out the trash from the Finder icon. A: You're definitely looking for a file manager application that lets you drag and drop files. There are many. I personally love Atomic File Manager, which has a native macOS application and works across systems, but also can be accessed through a web interface.
