Right-click the surface or drawing to open the Styles Pane, and then use the tab controls to select a style. Using a style, you can quickly apply the same drawing elements on more than one drawing. (video: 0:56 min.) Style: Styles define the appearance and formatting of a drawing. They are applied to a single drawing or to multiple drawings at once, using the New Drawing from Style option, the Select Drawing or Drawing Set option, or the Style dialog. (video: 0:55 min.) What's New in the New Drawing from Style Command: Eliminates a command line error when you are editing an object in one drawing in a drawing set. Defines the same drawing elements for multiple drawings.

Renames drawing elements to make them easier to use. Improved selection of drawing set by allowing a selected drawing set name to be re-used. Improved toolbars on the Quick Access toolbar. Refinement of the Property Browser. (video: 0:46 min.) All style elements are now contained on the Styles Pane. The Styles Pane groups style elements by category, making it easier to locate styles and duplicate and merge styles. The tools to edit and merge style are more accessible. The properties of a style are accessible even if the style is not applied to a drawing. The Building Blocks from Reference tab contains the commands that are used to create a new drawing set from a reference, project, or text file. The From File Options tab has a new feature.
