
Kabul Express Movie Download Mp4 Free !!HOT!!

in 2003, the sanctuary of istalif became the hq for the northern alliance, a motley collection of warlords, former intelligence officers, and uzbeks, and it was as kabul 2003 that the coalition launched its air strikes on the taliban. today, as we drank coffee outside the qala e mullah omar hotel, sitting in the shade of hemlock trees that gave off a voluptuous fragrance of lemons, an afghan employee led me to a shed and pointed to a group of beds lined up in a corner. as he guided me to the closest one, khaldoon, a taciturn young man who looked like a model, appeared and came toward us. khaldoon pointed to a bed. in it was a man who said he was a top official of the taliban and a relative of mullah omar. when i stopped by the hotel the day after my arrival, a few of the rooms were still occupied by foreigners who had been shot, apparently, by mortar fire. everyone i met was keen to talk about the hostility to foreigners, and about how they were determined to defend their homes to the end. after decades of war and revolution, the afghan people knew only that life would be short and tough now. asked how their children knew about suicide missions, a woman in a black burka told me. only their fathers and uncles had been in a war. the girls have been little since a long time. all of our childrens fathers and uncles died, so they know what happens when you kill yourself. she asked me why i wanted to travel all the way to kabul. where were you from? i told her i was from california. and so you have a lot of experience in war? she laughed. its not like weve been at war for 30 years. it started with the russians in 1979 and we always had problems with the russians, and after that we had the taliban when they took over kabul, and then we had the coalition and the american troops and the taliban wont stay away forever. but you know we can survive.
