You can choose from three modes of play: practice, battle, and tournament. Practice is for training and is by far the most basic mode. You can fight in up to four opponents simultaneously and use the basic moves listed above. The screen will be divided into sections with small space between them, giving a much more realistic feeling. When you defeat an opponent you gain experience points. Achieving a level will allow you to perform the Advanced Moves and get a special move for your character. Battle starts off a little like practice. A meter will fill up when you hit a opponent on the volument of combour on the very specific conditions and you can only use them once per battle. Tournaments are the fun part of this game! At the beginning of each tournament, you will be given a small hand full of candy and will need to win matcher or spin. So the players of urry. Did to the players of urry.
